

Abstract

A lateral semiconductor device includes an alternating conductivity type layer for providing a first semiconductor current path in the ON-state of the device and for being depleted in the OFF-state of the device, that has an improved structure for realizing a high 5 breakdown voltage in the curved sections of the alternating conductivity type layer.